In your issue of yesterday, you say the Hon, J. R. Westendybe was nominated by scalaration by the Demourable Congressional Convention. We, as Delegrates to that Convention from this city, deny this, and protest assinst the arbitrary manaer in which that nondication was scarred. This privilege was denied as by the Fresident of that Convention, whether purposely or not, we do not know. FUFREME COURT-GINERAL THRM.-August 21.-Before Judges Davies, INGRAHAM and SUTHERLAND. THE PARRIEN WILL CASE.

At the opening of the Court this morning, Judge Davice signified to ex-Judge Edmonds that they were ready to hear his argument on the appeal o' Mrs. Martha Sherman from the decision of the Sarrogate in the matter of the will of Henry Parrish. Judge Edmonds said that it embarrassed him very much to be in the position he then was-that he should ask the Court to allow the case to come up in its regular order in the calendar, as, should the Court compel him to go on, thiendar, as, should the Court compel him to go on, his position would be fully disclosed to his opponent, without the same advantage to his client from the other side. After some argument, the case was settled that Judge Edmonds should hand up his printed points: Mr. Dillon, counsel for contestants, should obtain an example of the same, and the Judge should then reply in like manner within the ensuing fourteen days.

Mr. Ashmead made application for the Court to sat manner within the ensuing fourteen days.

Mr. Ashmeat made application for the Court to set down some day for the hearing of the writ of error in the case of Stephen H. Branch. Mr. Ashmeat stated that it had been his original intention to ask their Heners to affirm the judgment of the Court below proforms, so that the matter could be immediately brought before the Court of Appeal, but had been isdueed to alter his intention in consequence of the precarious state of Mr. Branch's health, who, if allowed to remain in prison another ments, would probably die from the effects of his confinement. The Court stated they would hear the case to-day, but Mr. Sedgwick, the Assistant District-Altorney, replied that Mr. McKeon was at Long Branch, and that he had no means of communicating the suggestion of the Court to him. Judge Davies then said that the Court would hear the argument on Saturday next, if the District-Altorney would consent. Mr. Sedgwick said that he was unable to form any engagement for Mr. McKeon, and could not consent. The case then went over till the next General Term, which meets on the third Monday of September next.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS. - CHANGES - AUE 21.

Defire Judge Hitters.

Dean Fitzpatrick agt Asarch C. Flagg &:

It may now be considered settled, that reasonable counsel fees and expenses which a party is put to in precuring a dissolution of an injunction, constitute damages sustained "by reason of the injunction," and as such may be recovered in a proceeding upon an undertaking given pursuant to the provisions of sec. 222 of the Code. Edwards vs. Bodine II, Paige 234; Akirich vs. Reynolds I, Baulch R. 613; Wilde vs. Joel 15, Howard R. 320.

But in this case it is claimed that the defendants, as individuals, have sustained no damage; that it was the duty of the Corporation Counsel to have defended the action; and, although other counsel did appear,

o defend it unless so ordered. (See Charter of 1802,

No such order seems to have been made, and the No such order seems to have been made, and the defer dants very properly employed coussel to protect the interests they represented; and, although the moneys of the corporation were subsequently applied to the payment of the counsel fees and expenses thus assumed by the defendants, yet such payment did not absolve the sureties from any liability upon their undertaking; as it may reasonably be presumed that the defendants intend by these proceedings to obtain the means wherewith to restore to the Corporation the moneys thus applied. As a general rule, upon motione of this character, it is the duty of the Count, if requested, to determine as to the reasonableness of counsel fees charged or paid, notwinstanling the referee may have certified a sum which, in his opinion, would be a just compensation for the services counsel may have rendered.

But here it is not claimed, on behalf of the sureties, that the sums charged are unreasonable; or that the evidence before the referse would have justified him in soming to any other conclusion than that specified in his report. Consequently I am relieved from the necessity of locking into the case to determine what would be a reasonable counsel fee to be allowed in a case of this kind, or whether it was necessary that two counsel should have been employed.

I do not think that the language of the Code (Sec.
12) is sufficiently broad to authorize the Court to direct judgment to be entered against the parties to an undertaking of this nature, for the damages which may be summarily ascertained to have arisen from an injunction. may have lendered But here it is not claimed, on behalf of the sure-injunction.

I prefer, therefore, to adopt the safer course of directing that the referee's report be confirmed, and the defendants have leave to prosecute the undertaking. Ordered accordingly.

A Fremes-Boat Carsized—Three Mes Lost—Norie Cordict of the Crew of the Traveler.—The steamer Traveler, which arrived at her dock yesterday, brings the tidings of a sad disaster, which occurred about ten miles due east from Milwaukee during the severe blow on Tuesday night.

A tighing-boat, named the Frederick Lessing, left Milwaukee at 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning, manned by a crew of eight men—Charles Moller, Frederick Lessing, Wilham Pahler, Cornelius Meier, Frederick Weit, John Hubner, Maurits Boister and another whose first name was Frederick. His last name was unknown by our informants.

Yesterday morning, about 1 o'clock, they started home. The lake at that time was very smooth, and there was so little wind that they scarcely drifted. All hands were asleep below, with the exception of the helmsman. At 2 o'clock a sudden light squall from the north-west struck them, and in an instant the boat was capsized. All hands aprang to the deck, and a sudden light squall from the north-west struck them, and in an instant the beat was capelzed. All hands agrang to the deck, and clurg to the hull, maste and spars.

The storm gradually increased in fury until it blew a most violent gale, accompanied with the most ter-rific thunder and vivid lightning. The lake was lashed into fury, and every wave broke over them. But still they clung with the energy of despair to their frail floating ark. Soon one of their number, the one whose name was unknown to them, was washed off and lost. Lessing was several times washed off, but seized by the strong arms of one of the others. But exhaustion overcame him, and he died in one of his exhaustion overcame him, and he died it one of his comrade's arms. His comrade still held him, unwil-ling that his body should find a watery grave. All through the darkness of that long night, long it was to them ere daybreak appeared, they clung to their load.

to them ere day break appeared, they chang to boot.

Yesterday morning several vessels passed them, but they were too far off to see them. The Ludy Elgin also passed them, but did not observe them. Another one of their number, Cornelius Meier, was fast failing. His comrades ercouraged him to hold on. At 10 o'clock, after being in the water eight hours, the steamer Traveler hove in sight, on her way south to Coloago. She perceived them and made for the spot. The sea was still running wildly, and it was dangerous to venture out in a boat. But danger was not to be thought of when human lives were at stake. A boat was lowered, and Capt. Swenie, formerly of the Planet, who was on board; George Butha, first mate; Planet, who was on board; George Butlin, first mate; Heary White, eccond mate, and John Leonard, steward, manned it, and made their way to the wrecked boat. After much exertion they succeeded in picking them all off and getting them safely aboard the Trav-

Upon arriving at her dock, Dr. McVicker was sent for to attend Meier, who was fast failing. Nothing sauld be done for him, however, and at 7 o'clock last evening ne over.

Frederick Lessing, who died during the fatal night, was left at Racine. He has a wife and etc. while living in Milwaukee.

LIVELY TIMES AMONG THE NEW-YORK POLITICIANS.—We had a great battle among the New-York politicians here during the past week. It was one of the legacies of the Lecompton struggle, and originated in this manner: The representative of the First District in New-York, John A. Ssaring, concluded about the time of the final struggle on the Kansas quertien, when "England expected every man to do his duty," and waen votes were very precious, to make the most of his support of the Administration policy. He accordingly started post haste for New-York, and gave Collector Schell to understand distinctly that if some two dezen or more of his friends were not guaranteed appointments in the Custom-House, his vote could not be expected in the hour of trial. Schell gave him the desired assurance, and of late has been endeavoring to fulfill his promise. In doing so, however, the great question arose who should go out, and in deciding this weighty issue, Schell concluded that he might as well punish his ensmies as reward his friends, and he accordingly selected as fit subjects for decapitation men known for their devetion to those New York Congressmen who had antagonized him when the appointment for Collector was under consideration. Messes, Sicklee and Cochrane not relishing the idea of having their friends thus decapitated, protested so energetically against. Schell's programme that the Secretary of the Treasrane not relishing the lates of naving their friends thus decapitated, protested so energetically against Schell's programme that the Secretary of the Treasury delayed confirming it. Meanwhile Herrick, nother New-York official, has been denouncing this delay in The Sunday Allas, and there has been gretty free fight going on all round. All these parties have been on the ground during the last week, and after a warm struggle the contest has been brought to a final temperature of the contest has been brought to a final termination somewhat after this fashion. Sohell is to revise his list of removals and appointments, and when rearranged, it is to be confirmed at once, without examination: but if it turns out that be has persisted in striking down the friends of Sickles and Chohrane, and that he has not used the guillottee wisely and discriminately, nothing short of his own head will pay the penalty of such misconduct.

SINGULAR CONDUCT OF A DEER .- Authory Nieder weiser, proprietor of the Washington Garden, owner of Third and Elm streets, is the owner of two pet deers. Night before last he retired to bed, having Akrich vs. Reynolds 1, Baulch R. 613; Wilde vs. Joel 15, Howard R. 320.

But in this case it is claimed that the defendants, as individuals, have sustained no damage; that it was the duty of the Corporation Counsel to have defended the action; and, although other counsel did appear, yet it was without authority from the Counsel to the Corporation, and consequently the sureties to the uncertaining are not liable for any such fees or expenses.

To this it may be answered, that the deponents were root as individuals, and, as such, were espined; and although the action related to matters in which the Corporation of the City of New York was interested, yet its counsel was not actually at the counterfeit coin that might not passed. BIRTH.

Monnay Aug. 23-P. M. The improved feeling noticed in the Stock market on Saturday was lest to-day. The amount of business transacted was in the aggregate moderate, although there was considerable activity in a few stocks, most marked in Central and Reading. The movement of the bear interest was vigorous and the barmering of Central was severe. The operators for the fall appear to have no confidence in a favorable result to the renewed negotiations between the Erie and Central Roads nor in any improvement in receipts should an arrangement be arrived at. They operate upon the hypothesis that the general business of the country must continue depressed during the remainder of the year, and that, consequently, the railroads cannot earn dividende. Under this impression there has been a long line of shorts put out in railroad shares, and although the sellers may be correct in their premises, yet some wave of speculation might easily come and swamp all their calculations. Central opened at 77; but sellers' options being freely offered the market weakened and fell off to 77]. Erie remains steadily at the stereotyped price of 17 | @ 17 |. Reading was in fair den and and fluctuated between 48 and 48 closing at 48 bid. The Western shares were weak generally, under reports of light business in August.
The Rock Island shows less than $30,000 for the first two weeks of August, and the Galena, it is reported, will not reach $100,000 for the mouth. Under these chounstances it is not surprising that the bears are able to it fluence the market in their favor by hammering. Rock Island was sold as low as 71], seller sixty, and Galena as low as 821, seller thirty. Milwaukee and Mississippi was steady at 16. Toledo was in fair request and steady. Southern was strong in the morning, but was not sustained at the Second Board. The statement below in regard to this road is more favorable than was expected, and more favorable than meny other roads can show. Pacific Steamship was the most buoyant stock, and sold at 881. In the Bond market the business was moderately large, including $39,000 of the new Government loan at 103]. State Stocks generally are steady. The sales of Railroad Bonds were small. La Crosse Land Grants were in demand and are not plenty. They improved to 23. The market at the close was dull at the following prices. Erie, 17 | # 17 |; Central, 77 | # 77 |; Rock Island, 72 | # 72 |; Reading, 48 | # 48 |; Galena, 82 | # 83; Toledo, 33] a 33]; Southern, 22] a 22]; Milwankee and Minzis.

The market is moderately active for foreign bille, and rather etronger than for the last steamer. Sterling is held at 91 by leading drawers; but the sales are 9[19] $\psi$ cent, including one transaction reported of £60,000. France are quiet at 5.12]

As was anticipated the Bank Averages of the wask show a large increase in loacs and a large decrease in specie-the changes in the two items being about eansl. The expansion of loans is entirely due to the advances, either by purchase of or loan upon Government stock, of which a large amount is now held by the banks. In fact, this has been the only outlet for the abundant means of the banks and has been freely availed of. The line of loans is now four millions larger than was touched during the wild expansion of last year. It is true that of this amount some twenty millions are on Government Securities, but it is a dangerous inflation, the aggregate loans being nearly one hundred per cent larger than the aggregate capitale of the banks, and any revival of business which should infuse activity in the present inert mass of the deposit line must inevitably cause a severe contraction, and result in more or less commercial distress. At the present low rates of interest bank managers, in order to earn the usual dividends, have no recource but to enlarge their loans, but this may be done to an unsafe entent, and the prudent officer should hesitate before he places himself again in the position which resulted so disas-trously last October. The loans are increased this week $158.850, by the first report of the North River Bank. The specie line shows a decrease of $2,800,000, which basgone into the Sub-Treasury. The domestic movement of specie has been quite light during the week. Hoston is in our debt, but the banks here do not feel the neceseity for drawing specia. With Philadelphia we are debtor or about even. The line of actual deposits shows a moderate decrease, quite as small as was anticipated. We cannot learn that mucu change has taken place in the bank balances, although in some cases the creditor banks have withdrawn a portion of their balances, finding it impossible to employ them here. From the moderate changes which have taken place in the deposit line for the past two weeks, the inference would appear to be that but a small portion of the Government loan had been taken for private investment.

If the trade does not soon change for the better, the less in the Anthracite trade in 1858, compared with 1857, will reach 600,000 tans. The Concinnate Gazetic (Aug. 21) says:

"The demand for money continues moderate, and rates of discount are a shade firmer, but the market is quite easy for good paper at 9 a 10 e cent. Loans are not new obtainable to any extent, below 9 W cent, even on first-class securities, and it requires strictly No. 1 paper to pass at 9. As business improves in the general markets, and the Fall season approaches, capitalists manifest less disposition to make concessions in rates.

"Bills on the East and South are in demand at equal to 6 $\psi$ cent for first-clase $\psi0.\psi\ day drafts on the former, and 8 $\psi$ cent for $\psi0\ days to four morths do, on the latter. Names not strictly first-class, but good, sell at $1 \psi 2 $\psi\ cent\ bigher.

"There was only a moderate demand for Esstern Exchange to-day, and the market was heavy, but there is no quotable change in prices."

That popular institution known as the "Waubsek Bank," located at De Sota, this Territory, has collapsed, and is tetotally smashed up. This "cat' was one of a large litter of kittens brought into "this breathing world" about a year and a quarter, ago, under what is denominated the "general incorporation act. When it expired, it is not known positively, nor the cause of its untimely demise. Very little of its issues have circulated in this violity, and its failure scarcely elicits remark from any quarter. One of our citizens visited De Sota on Monday, with a few "promises to pay" of the Waubsek and found nothing "In the place where the Bank ought to be."

Even the safe had been disposed of to a gentleman

Even the safe had been disposed of to a gentleman connected with another cat or the same species. It is to be hoped that New-York parties who assisted in giving this thing credit abroad are sufferers by its failure. We can only repeat the alumnition, refuse all Nebraska money. We expect to have the pleasure of chronicling the death of more wild cats ere long.
